FRANCIS DE GROOT IRISH FASCIST AUSTRALIAN LEGEND

Andrew Moore

“It’s one of the most famous larrikin acts in Australian history, the cutting of the ceremonial ribbon to open the Sydney Harbour Bridge by some coot on horseback before the official party could do the honours. But most of us know little or nothing about who did it. This portrait of a right-wing reactionary figure named Francis De Groot seeks to redress that state of affairs. From his Irish origins – Dutch Huguenot family – we are given the tale of someone who went to sea in his teens, saw much of the world and settled in Sydney. He may have become one of Australian history’s nuts, but this is an excellent political biography. It is a sympathetic and detached story about an intelligent and charming fascist with a lot of go, impressive enough to become a noted furniture manufacturer who moved in Sydney’s best circles.”

ISLAM
Its law and society

Jamila Hussain

Jamila Hussain explains the basic principles of the religion of Islam and its law (the Shariah), and how the Shariah is lived in the context of many different cultures throughout the world.

This book provides an introductory knowledge of Islamic law and culture in general and within Australian society in particular.

“Hussain says “I believe strongly that ignorance is the cause of most bigotry and hatred and wrote the book to try to give mainstream Australians some knowledge, and hopefully a better understanding, of the Islamic aspects of the cultures of Australia’s closest neighbours to the north.”

Readers of Jamila Hussain’s book will effectively gain that knowledge and understanding.”

COMRADE ROBERTS
Recollections of a Trotskyite

Kenneth Gee QC

Kenneth Gee was one of the young Australians who followed the Trotskyite flame in the 1940s. His memoirs tell the story of a middle class boy fervid for a better world, a man who transforms himself from a bright-eyed young solicitor... to a boilermaker’s labourer on the Sydney waterfront.

We Trotskyites were a mixture of genuine Depression-hardened proletarians, with a residue of declassed intellectuals, idealists, dreamers, born losers, power-seekers, thugs, neurotics and drunks, and we operated with a combination of cold rationality and political lunacy, as these pages may reveal.

His is a vastly entertaining tale of life in Sydney in the Second World War, of work on the docks, in factories, as maker of hearses; and of meetings and schisms and the overthrow of capitalism.

THE PREMIERS OF NSW
Volume 1 & 2

Edited by David Clune & Ken Turner

Every Colonial and State Premier of NSW in the 19th and 20th centuries is portrayed in this superb, illustrated, two volume set. The short biographies are detailed, entertaining and, sometimes, surprising. There are significant re-evaluations of little-known Premiers such as Donaldson, Carruthers and Stevens.

There are many highlights: Geoffrey Bolton on Sir Henry Parkes “The Father of Federation”; TW Campbell on Sir George Dibbs, who stripped naked to avoid bailiffs come to arrest him; Graham Freudenberg on Neville Wran; Rodney Cavalier uses his Cabinet diaries to recall Barrie Unsworth, while Ian Hancock provides a rigorous and balanced account of Bob Askin.

DECISION AND DELIBERATION
The Parliament of NSW 1856–2003

David Clune and Gareth Griffith

This beautifully presented and scholarly book recounts the ways in which the Parliament has carried out its constitutional responsibilities in the 150 years to 2005. There are other accounts of the lawmaking, the frictions, and the controversies in which the Parliament has been involved. This is the authoritative account written from the perspective of the Parliament.

It covers fully the clashes between the two Houses, the attempts to abolish the Upper House, and the working out, in relations friendly and fractious between Parliament, the Executive and the Judiciary, of the limits of legislative power and of what Responsible Government means in modern New South Wales.

ACHIEVING SOCIAL JUSTICE
Indigenous rights and Australia’s future

Larissa Behrendt

“Behrendt provides perhaps the clearest articulation we have of what Indigenous Australians want and need – and how it might be achieved. This book will be debated, dissected, applauded and disagreed with in the years to come, and certainly quoted alongside the work of the most influential legal and social commentators in the field. For the moment, it is compulsory reading for anyone working or interested in Indigenous law and policy. …

Most of the critical contemporary issues in Indigenous law and policy in Australia are discussed in the book … most of the significant contributions to the debate are interpreted and responded to. Behrendt writes with an honesty and clarity that is sometimes lost in the Indigenous law and policy debate, and offers constructive proposals.”

THE ART OF BEING EMPLOYED

Do you really want that job but don’t know how to go about getting it? Well, read this book and apply the methods; the outline made it very easy for me and comment was made that it was the most comprehensive application in the pile. Not only did I achieve an interview, I was offered the job... it may take a little more preparation, but you will be successful. It’s as easy as that and, incidentally, luck has nothing to do with it!

This self-help book is packed full of practical exercises and references. It’s the guide to selling yourself and highlighting your qualifications and experience – getting the job you want and keeping it. Aimed at tertiary graduates, this book is also ideal for anyone looking to change careers and begin the application process and interview scramble.

FUTURE SEEKERS II

Refugees and Irregular Migration in Australia

Mary Crock, Ben Saul and Azadeh Dastyari

This book explores Australia’s ambivalent legal and political response to “irregular” migrants – the asylum seekers, “boat people”, “illegals”, “queue jumpers” and “economic migrants”.

It begins by documenting the essential facts: how many people arrive, who they are, where they come from, and why they come.

The core of the book addresses the complex system of refugee law and policy and the extensive changes since Tampa in 2001. It covers both the introduction of the “Pacific Strategy”, and the 2006 changes following the arrival of a boatload of West Papuans.

The final part examines the policy of mandatory detention of unlawful non-citizens and reports on living conditions in the detention centres. It explains key High Court decisions confirming parliament’s power to detain a person indefinitely – and in breach of international human rights law.

In key areas, Australia’s experience, law and policy is compared to that of other countries.

UNDERSTANDING ETHICS

2nd edition

Noel Preston

After a century of enormous economic, political and social change, we live with exponential technological growth and are developing capacities in respect of life that were once the domain of Fate.

We experience unprecedented freedom of moral and consumer choice, alongside intrusive regulation of our day-to-day activities. Our major constraints are peculiarly modern - economic expectations, not knowing what to do, or a profound awareness of the impact of our personal and national decisions on others. With such power, freedom and knowledge come unprecedented ethical responsibility.

Understanding Ethics introduces the frameworks of moral philosophy to analyse contemporary moral issues and perennial human dilemmas. Noel Preston outlines his own model for decision-making based on the idea of responsibility, and finishes with a challenging chapter, “Cultivating an Ethical Life.”

Australia was the first nation to invent itself through the ballot box and has become a country renowned for democratic innovations, from the secret ballot to adult suffrage and Saturday elections.

Many of these reforms are now benchmarks of democracy. Yet the equity of Australia’s electoral process continues to be challenged. Does Australia have full, free and fair elections?

The authors of this informative, entertaining volume tell of political forces and personalities, which have shaped Australia’s electoral system. They describe how Australia became a pacesetter, why it experimented so much and whether the experiments have worked.

They go on to consider what could and should be done, and the major modern challenges.

LAW AND ORDER IN AUSTRALIA

“This is one of those myth-busting books.... Weatherburn demolishes the rhetoric with the reality of what ‘works’ and ‘doesn’t work’ in controlling crime. For every seemingly bold assertion... there is a wealth of reference to empirical studies from around the globe to back it up.

I couldn’t detect a flicker of bias – if its evidence-based Weatherburn accepts it.... “

LIBERAL WOMEN

Shortlisted for the 2004 NSW Premier’s History Awards.

When Menzies formed the modern Liberal Party out of the squabbling rabble of the UAP in 1944, he had to cede to the women’s organisations formal representation and real power. Liberal Women is the story of why.

It is a tale of strong, vocal, persistent women who carried the liberal flame across Australia in the first half of the 20th century while the men split and merged, and talked and merged and split again.

It is the story of women who grasped the implications of the female suffrage that followed Federation in a way that no others did: winning elections meant winning the female vote; and delivering the female vote gave political power. MABO, WIK AND NATIVE TITLE

4th edition

Peter Butt, Robert D Eagleson and Patricia Lane

A decade on from the decision in Mabo, this book remains a key mechanism for distinguishing between fact and myth among the claims and counter-claims which bedevil Australia’s native title debate.

It provides an accurate, accessible and unbiased account of what the judges and the Acts of Parliament have actually said about native title, what it means and what problems are likely to arise.

Recognising that the High Court’s 1993 ruling in Mabo remains the basic legal document on native title, this 4th edition retains the plain language version of the ruling as its core. There follow equally straightforward explanations of the Native Title Act 1993, the 1996 High Court judgment in Wik, and the Howard government’s legislative response in 1998 with the “10 point plan”. Finally, there are two completely new chapters on how the Native Title legislation has worked in practice, what important issues remain to be resolved and some possible future directions for solving them.

WILD LAW

Cormac Cullinan

In this visionary book, Cormac Cullinan explains how, if the community of life on Earth is to survive, a new understanding of nature and a new concept of legal systems are needed.

Cullinan proposes a new approach or “Earth Jurisprudence” and gives practical guidance on how to begin moving towards it. He shows that this philosophy could help develop new legal systems that would foster human connections to nature. It would encourage personal and social practices that ensure our planet remains liveable.

Wild Law is an inspiring and stimulating book, which fuses politics, legal theory, ancient wisdom and personal experiences into a fascinating and eminently readable story.

“This important book shows not only why we need to revise our governance systems completely, but also how to begin doing so in a way that draws inspiration from nature and from our diverse human communities.”

MACONOCHE’S GENTLEMEN

The story of Norfolk Island and the roots of modern prison reform

Norval Morris

Renowned criminologist Norval Morris recounts the inspiring life of an early advocate of humane prison conditions.

In 1840, Alexander Maconochie, a privileged retired naval captain, became at his own request superintendent of two thousand twice-convicted prisoners on Norfolk Island, a thousand miles off the coast of Australia. In four years, Maconochie transformed what was one of the most brutal convict settlements in history into a controlled, stable, and productive environment that achieved such success that upon release his prisoners came to be called “Maconochie’s Gentlemen”.

Morrison shows that Maconochie’s life and efforts on Norfolk Island provide a model with profound relevance to the running of correctional institutions today. Using a unique combination of fictionalised history and critical commentary, Morris gives this work a powerful policy impact lacking in most standard academic accounts.

Cannabis is one of the most widely used drugs in the world. Popular as a recreational drug for thousands of years, it has also been used as a medicine since 2300 BC. Over the last few decades, cannabis users and an increasing number of doctors and scientists have demanded the reform of cannabis laws. But do we know how cannabis works? What effect does it have on the brain? What ill-effects are associated with its use? Is there any convincing evidence supporting its use as a medicine? Should it be decriminalised? Cannabis on the Brain answers these questions using the latest scientific information from pharmacology and medicine, using a minimum of technical jargon.
