Notes on Contributors

Dr Anne Beggs-Sunter is a historian with the Collaborative Research Centre in Australian History at Federation University, Ballarat. Her research has focused on colonial history with particular reference to Ballarat and the Eureka Stockade.

Frank Bongiorno is based in the School of History at the Australian National University. His most recent book is The Eighties: The Decade That Transformed Australia (2015).

Jeff Brownrigg is a senior research fellow at the Australian National University. His research interests are broad, including Australian music, literature and cultural history. A long-time manager/researcher at the National Film and Sound Archive in Canberra, he has been an adjunct professor (cultural heritage) for the last decade.

Dr Benjamin T Jones is a historian and social commentator based at Western Sydney University. He is the author of Republicanism and Responsible Government (2014) and Atheism for Christians (2016), and co-editor of Project Republic (2013).

Andrew Leigh is the Shadow Assistant Treasurer and Federal Member for Fraser in the ACT. Prior to being elected in 2010, he was a professor of economics at the Australian National University. His books include Disconnected (2010), Battlers and Billionaires (2013), The Economics of Just About Everything (2014) and The Luck of Politics (2015).

Emeritus Professor John Molony was head of the History Department at the Australian National University. He is the author of 15 books, and his current work is on Cook’s first voyage, 1768-1771.

Professor Paul Pickering is the Dean of the College of Arts and Social Sciences at the Australian National University. He is an interdisciplinary historian who has published widely on social and political movements, biography, public memory and commemoration in the Anglophone world.
James Warden is a cultural heritage consultant. He writes on Australian Federation, Aboriginal and frontier history, republicanism and the old Empire.

Taimus Werner-Gibbings feels that the first, best book he ever read was Eureka Stockade by Alan Boardman and Roland Harvey. He still reads to keep the fires burning while working in federal politics and the Commonwealth Public Service. His winning entry in ABC Grandstand’s Short Story Competition was published in ABC Grandstand’s Unsung Sporting Heroes Anthology (2013).

Clare Wright is a historian, author and broadcaster. Her book, The Forgotten Rebels of Eureka, won the 2014 Stella Prize and the NIB Award for Literature, and has been published in a Young Adult edition as We Are the Rebels. Clare is an Associate Professor of History at La Trobe University, where she holds an ARC Future Fellowship to research a new history of mining in Australia.